Library Plans Two KC Tours Next Week

A tour of the Lynda Hall science library in Kansas City will be conducted Tuesday morning, July 18, for approximately 35 NWMSC students who are minoring in library science or who are members of library science classes.

In the afternoon a tour of a public school library in Kansas City will be conducted for the same group.

Miss El Virga Denning, Horace Mann librarian, Miss Barbara Palling, reference librarian at the college, and Mr. James Johnson, college librarian, will accompany the group.

An NWMSC bus will furnish transportation for the tour.

Drop Us a Line

The next issue of the Missourian will appear on July 26. Deadline for that issue will be July 20. People having information that they would like published should submit it to the paper before the deadline—or phone JU 2-5771 and ask for a reporter to come and interview them.

Book Exhibits To Highlight Summer School

Over 600 children's books will be included in the book exhibit in room 2 at the college library from July 14 through 28.

The books are designed for children from kindergarten to grade nine.

Both fiction and non-fiction, the books cover 31 subjects. The basic fields covered include science, biography, information, aeronautics, history, and social studies. Many picture books are included.

If anyone wishes to order any of the books, he may contact a member of the library faculty, and arrangements for ordering will be made, according to Miss Barbara Palling.

The exhibit will be open daily to the public from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The annual summer text-book exhibit was held July 10 and 11 in room 108 of Colden Hall.

Miss Christa Newerla Is Miss Northwest Missouri

'Intruder in the Dust' To Be Next Den Movie

"Intruder in the Dust", based on a novel written by William Faulkner, will be the featured den movie this Friday, July 14.

Claude Jarman, Jr., David Brian and Juane Hernandez star in this thrill-packed story of racialism, credited as "excellent" by New York critics.

A negro in Mississippi is accused of the murder of a white man and is jailed. A young boy, a lawyer, an old lady and a sheriff hunt desperately for the real killer as an angry lynch mob gathers.

Profoundly dramatic in its examination of the real basis of racialism, the movie at the same time takes full account of the problems of the South.

The film lasts 87 minutes, with a dance following. There will be a 25 cents admission fee. Curtain time will be 7:30 p.m.

MSC Language Head As National Judge For NCTE Program

Dr. Frank Grube, chairman of the division of language and literature, Northwest State College, has been appointed a judge in the annual National Council of Teachers of English achievement awards competition.

Purpose of the program is to grant public recognition to some of the nation's outstanding students of high school English. The council's goal is to increase the effectiveness of the teaching of English language and its literature in the nation's schools and colleges.

The council sends scrolls of recognition to the winning students and to the English department which trained the student, and sends to colleges and universities the recommendation that the award winners and runners-up be considered for scholarships.

A Northwest Missouri State College coed, Miss Christa Newerla, was named "Miss Northwest Missouri", July 1 at Maryville High School in connection with the annual Northwest Missouri Horse Show held at the Maryville fairgrounds July 1 and 2.

Miss Newerla, 21, is an International Rotary scholarship exchange student from Germany. She is majoring in French and Spanish and is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bruna Newerla, Wilhelmshaven, Germany.

Students Are Princesses

Three of the four princesses are students at NWMSC. They are Miss Betty Johnson, Burlington Junction; Miss Christy Johnston, Maryville, and Miss Sally Jackson, Maryville. Miss Dorothy Pfeifer, Maryville, was named the other princess.

Other contestants were Misses Karan-Porter, Benita King, Sandra Cornett, Sherry Wright, Leslie Tucker, and Judy Schuster, all of Maryville.

Miss June Lee Nelson, Parnell; Miss Pat Harris, Platte City; Miss Harriett Garton, Albany, and Miss Georgia Kay Linville, Graham.

Contest judges were Mrs. Milo Blazer, Mound City, chairman, Mrs. Hazel English, mother of Miss Sandra English, "Miss Northwest Missouri" of 1960, and Mr. Jim Offenbacher, Mound City.

Five Campus Musicians To Give Final Recitals

Five music majors will give their final senior recitals during the course of the present summer semester.

They are Joel Pottenger, piano; Leland Triplett, trumpet; Jack Ryan, trumpet; Bob Reck, voice; and Priscilla Specht, voice.

No definite dates have been set for any of the above listed recitals.

Letterman Becomes Dean of Men

TAKE A LETTER . . . Dean Jack Lasley dictates a letter to his wife, who is also his secretary in the housing office.

Mr. Jack Lasley, a 1961 graduate of NWMSC, has been named dean of men at the college to succeed the late Dean Lon Wilson.

Thirty-year-old Lasley was born in Hopkins and reared in Red Oak, Iowa. Before entering NWMSC he attended Iowa University where he lettered in track and basketball. He then entered Northwest Missouri State College and lettered in football.

In the early 1950's Mr. Lasley moved to Riverside, California, where he took the position as a highway patrolman which he held for three years.

He returned to Maryville in 1959 and completed his education at NWMSC. He majored in physical education with an English-speech minor.

He was an outstanding football player having lettered in it three seasons.

Lasley also was a talented actor as he took part in several play productions.

Dean and Mrs. Lasley are the parents of two children, Heidi, 7, and Mike, 9. Mrs. Lasley is employed as the secretary in the housing office.

THE COLLEGE OATH

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our College, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the College. We will revere and obey the College laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

Do You Belong to the Club, Too?

Congratulations to all you wonderful yellow line straddlers. I am sure that I am not the only person on campus to be amazed at your ability. But then, after all, you have probably spent many hours in practice, as you manipulate your darling little autos around so that they will just go over the yellow parking lines placed in parking areas around the campus.

You must have worked very hard in order to figure mathematically just how to keep at least two cars from being able to park in those spaces you so meticulously covered up. That spacing you do between autos. . . now that is really something to be admired. You always manage to leave a few spots that look big enough for my little jitney to enter. However, when I attempt to turn its wheels into position and shift into the forward gear, I suddenly realize that you dear people have been at your work again. Of course, by the time I do realize this fact, it is too late to do anything about it. (Also, there are usually cars lined up behind me. Their drivers, as a rule, seem to utter soft praises in regard to your dexterity). At any rate, when I finally get my car situated back into the line of traffic, which probably wouldn't be a line at all if it wasn't for ingenious you, I can usually drive for several minutes before I can find anyone who does not belong to your club. When I do find one of these freakish parkers, I am often inclined to take down his license number so that I can perhaps trace him down. You see, dear yellow line straddlers, if I could find this other person who has not yet joined your ranks along the parkways of the Northwest Missouri State College campus, perhaps the two of us could come to one of your meetings. You surely understand our problem, don't you?

After all, in this age of togetherness, that other motorist and I hate to be left out. Besides, we personally would want to say to you, "Congratulation to all you ?*&?! yellow line straddlers."

Peace Corps Members Deferred

Peace Corps volunteers can be deferred from military service under the present Universal Military Training and Service act.

This is the opinion of Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service. His views were outlined in an editorial in the Selective Service Bulletin.

"The relationship of the Selective Service System with registrants who become members of the Peace Corps can be handled administratively," Hershey wrote.

He said the classification of registrants in the Peace Corps "can be handled as any other registrant engaged in activities in the national health, safety, or interest."

When they return home, volunteers could qualify for further deferment.

Important factors listed by Hershey for consideration when the volunteer returns home include his age, his physical condition, his marital status, the regulations which apply when he is released "and whether or not the registrant on his return from service with the Peace Corps engages in an activity which permits him to be deferred in the national health, safety, or interest."

Maryville Armory Can't Be Used for Homecoming

A letter to Dr. J. W. Jones from Lt. Col. Leigh R. Wilson will probably cause some NWMSC Greeks to begin looking for new housing for their 1961 Homecoming floats.

The letter states that an annual general inspection conducted by an Inspector General from Fifth U.S. Army is scheduled in the Martin-Pederson Armory here in Maryville for Wednesday, November 1. This will make usage of the armory for the building of student organization floats impossible prior to Thursday, November 2.

This circumstance may cause some upset in Homecoming plans for this fall.

Last Labors Of Louisa

The ladrone furlled his lateen and became a lauder at latrria. But he struck the lattice with a laten and had to go latescent on a latifundium. There he produced laudanum, latakia, latex and latches. Later a lascivious, larken lascar latched on the latter. The lascar lashed the ladrone by the larynx and fetched him a larrup. The latter later latched on to a larine he had leased, put on loose larigans, looped a lasso loosely with a larriat, and raised the larum. The larikan was lassoed by the larriat when a lass had laughed him from largo into lassitude. Surely a lark for a latitudinarian.

College Student Really Needs Mom's Sympathy

Letters from home are always especially welcomed by collegiate students of today. Mothers in particular are, for the most part, extremely sympathetic about the problems which their offspring must overcome in college. We are reprinting the following letter from the SWMSC Standard with the greatest respect and understanding:

Dear Son,

I do hope that you are not studying just too awful hard. I don't want you to strain yourself. In fact, I think it would do you good to go out occasionally and get a coke or something.

Your father and I were in Maryville last week. We went to your room but you weren't there. We looked for you in the library, but I suppose you were studying somewhere else.

Your roommate said that he had not seen you for three days. He must never come home. He looked very studious but you can never tell about people. There was even an empty beer bottle on your bed that he must have put there.

I sent you the money you asked for. I understand how many pencils you must wear out and how much paper you use. I hope you can find time to write. That last post card was a little short. But I understand, those music and art courses must be very difficult. We miss you very much.

Love,

Mother

Of Spenders and Genders

Astronauts and jockeys notwithstanding, the tradition of male supremacy long cherished by at least half of our nation appears to be becoming a wistful myth!

Today women make up approximately one-third of the American labor force and hold down better than 30 per cent of all professional and technical jobs. There are about a million women officers, proprietors and managers of business firms. In some 50 American communities the mayor or city manager is referred to as "her honor."

There is not only a Woman's Press Club and Association of Women World War II Veterans, but also a Society of Women Geographers.

Even the cherished stereotype of the flighty and irresponsible woman driver has fallen by the wayside; this year women won first place in two of six classifications in an annual economy run designed to measure gas economy (and driver proficiency) in American Stock automobiles.

Abroad, male supremacists are under still greater threat: 80 per cent of the doctors in the Soviet Union are women.

In Mexico a pert and sprightly girl—American by birth—earns a successful living and the plaudits of thousands of viewers as she performs in the bull ring.

These are just exceptions, some die-hard males may growl as they ask: "How's the average woman doing?"

Just fine, thanks—what with women voting 70 per cent of U.S. corporate stock, spending 80 per cent of the family income and, in the case of more than a third of our adult female population, contributing substantially to it!

Most embarrassing of all to male egos, however, is the distaff invasion of hallowed social and sartorial precincts.

Examples? The Lambs Club of New York, famous for years as a man's stronghold, has opened its august premises to women visitors. And it requires only a casual glance in any direction to find men's slacks and trenchcoats gracing (?) many a female figure.

(Editor's Note: Breathes there the man, father of a teenage daughter, who hasn't had to fight for possession of his shirts?)

Does any hope remain for His Nibs, faced with an ever-dwindling number of masculine strongholds? Happily, the answer is yes—American industry is coming to the rescue with new "genderized" products designed exclusively for male use.

Leading cosmetic firms, for example, are stepping up production of lotions and soaps that appeal only to the man about the house. And a major pen manufacturer, after diligent attention to the writing requirements and characteristics of mere males, is marketing a "barrel-chested" fountain pen for men that is heavier and larger and has 50 per cent greater ink capacity than standard models. It's supposed to appeal to men not only because it's a comfortable precision writing instrument but also because a pen specifically designed for the pressure of a masculine grip isn't likely to attract feminine writers.

This genderizing of products isn't new, of course, but heretofore it has been limited for the most part to feminine styling of masculine objects.

Admittedly biased observers see the brave trend toward new "for men only" products as a harbinger of the resurgence of the male. Are they whistling in the dark? Only time will tell. Meanwhile, men — courage!

Neither Heck Nor High Water Did or Can Stop Sammy Howe

Undaunted by a tragic accident, Sammy K. Howe leads a normal life on our college campus.

On July 14, 1955, before his senior year in high school, Sammy was injured in a freak swimming accident at a lake near his home at King City, Missouri. Simply by jumping off a pier, he broke his neck and was paralyzed from the neck down.

For seventy days Sammy lay in the hospital unable to move. His first operation was performed by Dr. Kulowski, St. Joseph, who is, incidentally, the father of Judy Kulowski, one of the instructors at the cheerleading clinic held recently at NWMSC.

Only One Thumb Would Move
When he finally went home, he could move only one thumb. After several more operations and exercises, he was soon using a walker, a wheelchair, and then crutches. During the school year following his accident, the wife of the man who owned the lake tutored Sammy every day so that he could graduate with his class.

During his convalescence, he had many interesting experiences. For instance, at the Jewish Hospital of St. Louis, a rehabilitation center, he had many roommates among whom were a Las Vegas gambler and a justice of the peace. His first night there, Sammy beat the gambler in his own game of "21."

In the fall of 1959 Sammy was able to start to school at NWMSC. He is now a junior working toward a secondary education degree in biology and general science. Although he does not yet have complete use of his legs, he buzzes from building to building in a three-wheeled Stevens Electric Chair which runs on two-volt batteries and goes at a speed of seven miles per hour. By operating a lever on the armrest, he can guide it forwards or backwards and by turning it left or right he can go sideways in either direction.

Enjoys Fishing, Hunting
A man of many interests, Sammy enjoys going fishing, and hunting with his automatic rifle and shotgun. In connection with this skill he is a taxidermist having among his prizes two pheasants, a mallard duck, and a crane.

Besides liking to watch certain sports, particularly basketball and football, he likes to participate in a good game of pool.

Known on campus for his cheerful disposition and the smile which goes with his friendly "hello," Sammy is definitely an inspiration to us all.

Dr. Jones Speaks On Housing To Lions Club

In speaking to the Maryville Lions Club on June 29, Dr. J. W. Jones stressed the fact that housing will be needed for one hundred to two hundred more students this fall.

Dr. Jones went on to say that he is now preparing a list of approved homes for both men and women. The Maryville Householders Association contract, a mutual agreement benefitting both student and householder involved in the approved housing plan, must be signed by both parties.

Private Housing
Also, during his speech, Dr. Jones pointed out that the new dormitories, now being built on campus, will not affect, to any great extent, the number of students now living in private homes as the expected increase of students will keep those living off campus at a par with this year.

The housing program is under the direction of Dr. Charles Koerble, dean of students. Mrs. L. G. Bladt is in charge of women's housing; Mr. Harry Bowes, assistant dean of students, and Dean Jack Lasley are in charge of men's on and off campus housing.

Although the committee cut several of the allocations for other state colleges and the University of Missouri, the allocation for Northwest State College was unchanged.

One of the key items in the allocation is $150,000 for resurfacing roads, along with curbs and drainage on campus.

Also included is 145,525 dollars to improve and equip the Uel Lamkin Health and Physical Education building which was not fully complete according to long range plans due to lack of funds after construction costs soared.

The highest allocation is 156,175 dollars for installation of a new boiler in the aged heating plant.

Another is 75,000 dollars for the construction of a home management house on campus.

Dr. Peterson Announces Mat Squad Additions

Dr. H. D. Peterson, chairman of the health and physical education department at NWMSC anticipates a fine wrestling team for this coming season. New members of the team are four outstanding wrestlers from Iowa and Missouri:

Roger Dahl, whose only loss was in the semi-finals of the Iowa state tournament when he was beaten by the champion, will wrestle in the 147 pound class.

Charles Butler will wrestle in the 177 pound class. His only loss came in the finals of the Iowa state tournament when he was beaten in an overtime. Both of these men come from East Waterloo, Iowa.

Darl Weaver, Griswold, Iowa, was beaten by the champion in the semi-finals of the state tournament. Weaver will wrestle in the 123 pound class.

From St. Louis, Mo., comes a two-time state heavyweight champion, Glen Acksel. He will add much strength to the wrestling squad at NWMSC.

Dr. Peterson expects all of last year's squad except two to return.

The matmen last February chalked up a second place in the Missouri Valley AAU Tourney, for the third year straight.

And over the past three years the wrestlers have won 29 out of 33 matches!

Just a Few Tips To Give More Good Fishing Fun

With the season for good fishing here, it seems timely to remind readers of some tips which make fishing more fun. Even old hands at the game aren't always "lucky", but they know basic facts which improve the size of their catch.

If there's a choice of when to go, why not wait for "ideal conditions"? It's well established that fish bite best when the moon is new—between the new moon and the first quarter, that is. Fish generally don't bite well when the barometer is falling—so try to wait until it is rising, or go when it is higher than normal. Another good time is when the weather man says a "cold front" is going to pass over.

What bait or lures to use? Water temperatures play a big part in deciding. When the water is very cold or very warm, fish usually lie deep, so we should have best luck using bait or jigs—fished deep. When water is quite cold or quite warm, live bait, spoons, jigs or deep-running plugs are the answer. Fish them well below the surface, and try varying depths until you know at what level the fish are.

Ideal temperatures are when waters range from 50° F. to 70° F. Then, fish should be feeding near or on the surface, allowing us to use flies, nymphs, spoons, spinners, near-surface or top-water plugs.

Dull colored and smaller lures usually bring best results when water is low and clear. Bright lures are preferred when streams are high; when the water is discolored, or when the day is dark. Under bright or low-water conditions, lures that are too large or that have much flash may scare the fish, rather than attract them.

Admission Policy Adopted By Wash. State U.

Pullman, Wash.—(I. P.)—The Washington State University Board of Regents has adopted a new admissions policy, effective in September, 1964. The new policy provides for the use of several measures of the student's ability to succeed in college, rather than the single factor of high school grade point average.

Present admission policies call for automatic admission of Washington residents who present a 2.0 (C) average from an accredited high school. The new policy calls for a full evaluation of the prospective applicant's high school record, the use of the scores made in the Washington Pre-College Test and other similar tests, recommendations and interviews.

AUSG Studies Mich. State U. Civil Rights

East Lansing, Mich.—(I. P.)—What positive action can be taken to insure civil rights for students?

This question recently came up for close scrutiny on the campus of Michigan State University before a panel of faculty members. Barry Baughton, chairman of the AA-University Student Government asked the panel what it thought of establishing a legal defense fund in AUSG. It was pointed out that the American Civil Liberties Union has such a defense committee.

According to Baughton, Student Government here is now a "pretty feeble organization." It is concerned with grievances and it deals with issues. Parents are against this, he said. "We have to go slow," is the comeback from the administration that AUSG often hears when it tries to get changes.

The American Association of University Professors is interested in freedom to learn, declared Dr. Albert Karson, associate professor of communication skills. He thought Baughton's legal defense committee would be a good idea. Baughton heads the finance committee of AUSG.

Don't Tread On Me

As is usually the case, students tend to wander off the sidewalks on campus and take short cuts across campus grounds.

This results in numerous paths being worn, which does not help the appearance of the campus area. A large amount of time and money is spent for the maintenance of the campus grounds and the "trail blazers" definitely do not help the situation.

The college has started a move to counteract the "jay-walkers".

A number of remedies have been suggested, such as wider sidewalks or possibly hedges to surround all out-of-bounds walking areas.

Fences would probably help the situation but they do not help the appearance of the campus, which is the primary reason for the fences in the first place.

The best possible solution lies in more consideration on the part of students for the facilities they have. Sidewalks are provided for the purpose of walking on; let's use them for that purpose and cut down on extra college expense while at the same time helping the appearance of the campus grounds.—WA from CMS Student

Columbia, Mo.—(I. P.)—Ten universities in the central United States have completed setting up the Mid-America State Universities Association, whose principal purpose is to help each member institution achieve a high degree of excellence in all of its teaching and research programs.

The charter members are: Colorado State University, the University of Colorado, Iowa State University, the State University of Iowa, Kansas State University, the University of Kansas, the University of Missouri, the University of Nebraska, Oklahoma State University, and the University of Oklahoma.

Articles of Agreement

Announcement of the founding of the new organization was made here recently by President Elmer Ellis, who represents the University of Missouri on the Executive Committee of the Association. The following four specific goals were set forth by member universities, he said, which met recently in Kansas City and signed and adopted a preamble to the Articles of Agreement:

1. To promote the improvement of specialized facilities and programs at the several institutions, and to prevent wasteful duplication in order that each university may achieve a high degree of excellence in all of its programs;
2. To promote cooperative arrangements through which the specialized or unique educational programs of these universities may be made available at resident fee levels to students on a regional basis;
3. To promote the cooperative use of unusual research facilities among the member universities;
4. To promote cooperation wherever possible in providing a unified voice in bringing major research and advanced educational facilities and programs to the region.
